

Leslie Duran

06/03/19

Missing Person

I entered the classroom staring at a chair where Dominic was sitting on last week. I went to my seat and sat down across the room from where He is assigned to sit. I went throughout the day not showing much interest about why he was gone for so long now. Dominic is the type to be joke around, he is the most confident person I have ever met, he would always hear me out when I had a problem. He was always there when I most needed him. When I would feel down, he would always make faces across that room just to make me smile. But why suddenly has he started missing school?

I started missing him the next three days that went by, I missed his brown curly afro hair I would always tease him, and I also missed his hazel green eyes. But now I regret it I wish he was here, so I could apologize to him. But I couldn't because he has not been here and now it has been six days. I started to panic thinking what could have happened to Dominic. I thought the worst, what if he got kidnapped? What if he moved without telling me? What if he is dead? I called him several times now, there was no response. I went to his house knocking at his door nobody opened and I couldn't even hear anybody. I calmed down and thought calmly what if he had an emergency and went to go visit his family members. Or he could have taken a vacation to with his family? But why are there still lights turned on in one of the rooms upstairs? Where could Dominic be?